FIRST SHOTS JANUARY – DECEMBER 2007

First shots are the very first few models that are produced from a brand new casting tool. These models are unique in that they form the test run for the tool before production begins - a small quantity (typically 250 pieces) which are run off and checked by hand for flaws, before the tool is finally signed off for production.

These ultra rare first 250 of a new tooling are then tumbled (a process which removes any waste material or sprue attached to the piece) and are test assembled with unpainted plastic components to ensure that all parts of the production process work.

In the past the collector would never get to see this essential stage in the diecasting process - however, Corgi now issue these 250 models which would in the past have remained locked away - with any imperfections fully intact - in presentation silk-lined boxes, the ultimate unrepeatable limited edition!

Please note we are only likely to receive a handful of each model - early orders are essential!
